

WALLY WORLD RIVERSIDE RESORT

Wally World is much more than a destination in a funny movie

A visit to Wally World Riverside Resort is a lot less stressful, more beautiful, and more fun than the Griswold family had in National Lampoon's Vacation when they finally made it to Walley World theme park. In fact, it's a world apart. Located in an area referred to as "Ohio's Largest Outdoor Complex," it's a huge playground for big kids as well as young kids too. Activities abound including canoeing, boating, fishing, hiking, zip lining, mini-golf, go-carts, and so much more. The resort predates the movie.

Wally World Riverside Resort in Loudonville, Ohio, is located on 26 acres of riverfront property. When you travel the five-mile stretch on Wally Road through the forest and next to the Mohican River on your way to the resort, you'll begin to understand what a treasure you've discovered. Once on the property through the 24-hour security gate, choose from hundreds of beautifully appointed campsites. Stay at your campsite and relax or take advantage of the many amenities.

"Wally World is a very pretty resort located right on the river," says Director of Resort Operations Ron Williams. "It's at a bend in the river which means the river winds past three sides of the resort. The Mohican River is the premier canoeing, rafting, and kayaking destination in the state of Ohio."

Soak in the hot tub and take a dip in the swimming pool. Keep clean in the air-conditioned bath house and laundry facilities. Take a hike on one or more of the nature trails. Get exercise on the playground and ball courts, play horseshoes or mini golf. The playground has just been expanded, and there was a total renovation of the bath houses.

Nearby Loudonville is nicknamed the "Canoe Capital of Ohio" for the many canoe liveries along the Mohican River.
