Beachwood Resort

The resort is bounded by the Pacific Ocean and the Canada-U.S. Border Drive north as far as you can on U.S. Interstate 5 and you'll find yourself in Blaine, Washington, home of Beachwood Resort. The city has several monikers. These include "Where America Begins," "The Gateway to the Pacific Northwest," and the "Peace Arch City." All these phrases are commentaries on Blaine's unique locale. In addition to being on the U.S./Canadian border, it's next to Drayton Harbor and Boundary Bay.

Of course the location is very important for the success of an RV resort, but it's also essential to have the right parent company. In this case, Sound Pacific Resorts skillfully manages this RVer-friendly Washington resort as well as two more resorts in Oregon.

Once you turn your rig into the 80 acres of all-season recreational fun, you know you've chosen well. With 24-hour security, hundreds of full hook-up sites, and clubhouses that are aimed at both adults and teens, your fun is just beginning.

Amenities include a general store, Wi-Fi, exercise room, and laundry room. Meet old and new friends while enjoying one of three heated swimming pools and hot tubs. Take on all comers on the lighted tennis and basketball courts or try a game of horseshoes. Activities include potlucks, sports, breakfasts, and much more. The activities office is open year-round.

If you're traveling without your rig, one of the 34 park model rental units should be perfect for you.

The coastal climate of the area provides fairly mild weather compared to the rest of the Pacific Northwest. Blaine enjoys more sunny days and a milder climate than neighboring communities.

If you decide to explore off-site, drive to the Peace Arch Historical State Park. The 67-foot arch was constructed to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the treaties that were a result of the War of 1812 with Great Britain. The park is known for its lush gardens, vast lawns, and panoramic views of Point Roberts and Vancouver Island.
